Paul Darin

"Kokish Game Tries"

What is the best way to look for game when partner raises your opening major to the two level? And how good should your hand be to go looking for game? There are short suit game tries, help suit game tries, and other options. Paul will explain Kokish Game tries to you. Kokish Game Tries allow you to combine short suit and help suit game tries, getting the best of both worlds.

Paul has been playing bridge for 30 years. He is a Diamond Life Master (7700 MPs) and a certified director. Paul has many sectional and regional wins and is a professional bridge player. His style as a teacher (at the table and in the classroom) is very laid-back and clear. He strives to make things as easy as possible for his partner with positive comments, unambiguous bidding, and obvious signals and leadership as a defender. He loves bridge and delights in helping people to see deeper levels of our fascinating game.
